

SELECTION MADE EASY

The full extent of the wide-ranging specialist highway surfacing product range manufactured by Adbruf Limited, is now clearly illustrated on the company's updated web site, which has just gone on line at www.adbruf.com

The entire site, which will shortly be accessible in many different languages apart from English, is geared toward making material selection simple. Even visitors with little knowledge of their exact material requirements can easily determine the various product options by following the routes that lead from the type of project with which they are involved.

Project categories cover highways, car parks, bus lanes, cycle & footways, schools, commercial property, sport surfaces, marine and harbour, rail, airports and military and hard landscaping. A click on the individual category accesses the types of products available and further sub-divides into the actual Adbruf brands. For example, the highways section lists line marking, surfacing equipment and consumables, with line marking breaking down into thermoplastic, cold plastic, paint, tape, tactile guidance systems and primer products, etc.

When the required product is determined, full technical data sheets, method statements (preparation, application and aftercare etc) and related products can be downloaded.

The site is enhanced with a 'What's New' section containing company news items, events and case studies and is supplemented by a very useful list of related organisations.

Adbruf's products, many of which hold product approvals in the UK and in other countries, are manufactured under strict quality control procedures. The company also operates a Quality Management System to BS EN ISO 9001:2000.
